

ca'ta'strophe

Tom Brinck

10/30/04

i . for one . shall not be the tool of punctuation of the line break or line end or exhortation no i . if anyone . shall not hail to the rule of the a'po'strophe horror though i might commit do not . i insist . dare your invective against my slim little i because it stands perfectly calm without your pride situated in its attitude of unruffled disdain i . with all due respect or none . will get by on my own terms with whatever idiosyncratic and impertinent whim of dot to dot i please and you . yes you . will . without consent and against your better judgment . be utterly at my mercy to comprehend